Not illustrated. 1783 Excerpt: .the estimation in which it was held by the French is, that when they destroyed the fortifications of he other islands, they continued to spend very very large sums in adding to the works upon Dominica. This is a circumstance, which, whilst it shews the value of the island, affords no slight evidence of the resolution and firmness wherewith the restorations of the, eighth article of the Preliminary Treaty were insisted upon, in the course of the negotiation. With regard to the West Indies, one would think it impossible that any man, excepting a planter on the ceded island, should dare to complain. The Treaty, in re-t fpect to that quarter, is vastly more honourable than the Peace of Paris was at the close of the last war, though that was a war of conquest. The four next articles, which are relative to Africa, will...
