THE RUSSIAN RAILWAY, TO HERAT AND INDIA (CLASSIC REPRINT)

Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Russian Railway, to Herat and India The remark made by Sir Henry Rawlinson at a meeting of the Royal Geographical Society, a few weeks ago, that the mere finding the money for such an undertaking as a Russian railway to India would be a difficulty of the first magnitude, led me to include in the series of articles on Central Asia I was contributing to the Morning Post, one on the subject containing data I had obtained during my two visits to Russia in 1882, and my conversations there with the designer of the railway, General Annenkoff, who had been instrumental in sending Lessar to survey for the line the country lying between Askabad and Herat. On the appearance of the article, a number of requests were addressed to me to issue it in a pamphlet form, and Arminius Vambery was so good as to express his readiness to append an introduction if I would do so. I have accordingly complied with this wish by revising the article and adding additional Russian data, and trust that it, and what may be called the Russian official map of the project, may have some effect in promoting on the one hand the extension of the Sibi line to at least Quetta, and, on the other hand, the immediate construction of a line through the Euphrates Valley to the Persian Gulf - a project which would have been carried out years ago, had there been less futile and unnecessary discussion over the matter.
