Excerpt: . . . DEVELOPMENT OF FLOOD-FREQUENCY DEVELOPMENT OF REGIONAL REGRES-ESTIMATES FOR STREAMFLOW-GAG-SION EQUATIONS ING STATIONS Regional regression equations for estimating flood-peak dis-charges were developed as a two-step process involving both Flood-frequency estimates for 305 streamflow-gaging sta-ordinary and generalized least-squares regression tech-tions in Ohio and adjacent states (table 4, fig. 1) were deter-niques. Ordinary least-squares (OLS) regression techniques mined by fitting the base-10 logarithms of the annual peak-were used in the first step to determine the best models relat-flow series to a log-Pearson Type III distribution. The flood-ing basin characteristics listed in appendix B to each t-year peak discharges corresponding to selected annual exceed-recurrence interval peak discharge estimate. In the second ance probabilities were computed by the following equation: step, the final model identified by means of ordinary least-squares regression techniques was used in generalized least-logQ X KS.
